Comment:

Despite some lows in this season, we can say that his project has run according to the expectations. At his club, Dortmund, he did his job, played a part in their revival in the second part of the season. On the international scene he played a good World Team Championships, delivered some results on the World Tour earlier the season and moved up on the WR. We need to mention his double victory at the Croatia Open and his 3-times in a row final at the Hungarian Championships. He continues to improve and that has been seen in his results, well done!

Comment:

In this part, a significant improvement has been shown from his side. He grew up in several areas, contributed to the group and produced each single practice a performance. It seems that the difficulties taught him some lessons, moreover, his privat life having a girlfriend has had a good impact on him. If he continues to put effort in the mental part and is ready to sacrifice for his sport then he can continue to improve in the next years.

Comment:

Positive thing is that he has been working decently in the core areas creating a stable physical stand point for his table tennis. Physical work became his daily routine. He takes care of his nutrition, too which is also important for his body. He still needs to work more on his flexibility and run more. In addition, his power is still not enough to compete against the top players hence he must put effort in finding a good blocks of work to enhance this part. Generally, he is in a good way!

Comment:

Definitely stability and consistency in all areas can be stated. His week points got much better making his game less vulnerable, on the other hand, his strengths became a wee bit more dangerous for the opponent. The key is to continue to develop a very good forehand (for all the kind of balls and situations) and service-receive game. His backhand part got reasonably better, this will raise will continue but his next big step is down to making his strong sides even stronger.

Comment:

Very independent, no problems off the table at all with him, He started to learn more German, the goal is to speak well in a year. Nothing more to mention here because he is a good professional off the table and so shall it be also in the future. He can make a difference outside the practice hall for him and for the others, as well.

Comment:

Successful season for him, he stabilised himself, progressed mentally and in his table tennis not mentioning outside the training centre he has made some promising steps for the future. He intends to start a project with ESN beside his table tennis and we believe that this is the right way for him! Moreover, we reckon that he can do both projects (his own table tennis and the ESN project) with full intensity and full commitment. We expect continuous growth and improvement from him in all fields!
